There is nothing permanent except change.“ — Heraclitus

J.D. Levine

My sincere congratulations to all members of the class of 1991! May you have great success and happiness in the future years.

As you leave the University for further study or to begin challenging careers, I hope you will carry with you many happy memories of your student days at Northeastern.

It seems like only yesterday when I first welcomed many of you in the Fall of 1986. Since then I am sure there have been many changes in your lives. The university has also undergone a number of changes. There are new buildings, new academic programs, new faculty members and administrators, including a wonderful new President. The university is getting better every year.

I hope you all will graduate with a well-deserved feeling of pride in your many accomplishments and a continuing affection for your alma mater which has become one of the world's greatest universities.

Good Luck!
Kenneth Ryder
Chancellor

Bachrach

To the class of 1991:

As members of the Class of 1991, you have witnessed some of the world's most exciting and important changes. You will live and work in a world that has changed utterly from the one Northeasetrn graduates have faced for the past 45 years. Your ability to keep pace with change will enable you to forge relationships with individuals who were previously strangers and your capacity to change will determine a new order locally, nationally and globally.

As you continue on the personal and career paths that your undergraduate years have begun, you will become citizens of the global village, and you will confront issues of unprecedented complexity. Our world's future depends on your generation's willingness to respond to the changes and opportunities ahead with tenacity, ingenuity and integrity.

Reviewing your accomplishments and your potential, I am confident you will answer that call. Whether as diplomats or military officers, doctors, social workers, engineers, entrepreneurs, educators, public servants or any of the myriad professions you choose to enter, you will help to maintain the United States of America as the land of freedom and opportunity. It will be with the greatest of pleasure and satisfaction that I watch you succeed in your lives and in your vocations as you have succeeded here.

You have warm congratulations for your past achievements and my best wishes for your future prosperity.

John A. Curry
President

DEDICATION

The 1990-1991 Cauldron is dedicated to the Northeastern University alumni, faculty, staff, and students of the past, present and future.

College students today face different problems than students of other generations. However, many of the 'old' problems have never changed and are still with us today. The pages of this book reflect on events and people that affected Northeastern students and the world during the past year.

The conflict in Kuwait and Saudi Arabia reminds some Vietnam Veterans of the horrors of their active duty, and we watched it snatch fellow students from the presumably safe confines of Northeastern. The racial unrest in Boston reminds many that even with all that the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s brought forth, there is still much to be done. The hysterical fear of 'Communists' from the 1950s has come back as a neurotic fear of gays, lebians and bisexuals into the 1990s. But will homophobia fade away as has the Red Scare?

There is one thing that will never change with college students. They are the educated future of this nation, and the concerns and problems that they face on these grounds, will prepare them better to face the world after graduation.

Whether freshman, sophomore, middler, junior or senior, the students of Northeastern exemplify the fast-paced changes in the globe and a generation adapting to those changes.

Commuting to Northeastern University for the last five years has been and ever shall be an adventure.

Commuters live near and far from campus and travel to class in many forms of transportation. For some this means they can't awaken minutes before an 8 a.m. class and still get there on time. They get up a couple hours before class and catch a train or bus. Some jump into their cars, eating breakfast and even shaving on the way to class so they can save time and beat the other commuters to those few empty parking spots.

Those quick meals at the many canteen trucks were the staple diet for many and others savoured the food of Paws, Club Ell and Burger King.

The Orange and Green lines they travel to the home of the red and black are an unforgettable experience. It is like standing in a sardine can. And for all those who wondered which is faster — it's the Orange Line.

After a long day of lectures, a nap is a student's first desire. But commuters can't crawl under the covers in a dorm room. Instead they take catnaps on the trains and buses. But they don't sleep soundly, and occasionally one will jump up from his seat, panicking that he missed his stop.

CAMPUS FEST '90

In the fall of 1990 the quad was overtaken by blue and white striped tents, balloons, a mock television studio and a small movie theater. These were all part of Campus Fest 1990.

Manufacturers targeted college students and toured campuses with programs, demonstrating their products and giving away free samples.

Best of all, Huskies had a chance to win free prizes donated through the Student Participation Campaign.

The Quad.....

A place where seniors go to celebrate the end of senior finals after spring quarter.

It was also used during the rest of the year as a study lounge, rest stop, recreational area, and a concert amphitheater. But some pretty interesting events have occured on the quad during our stay here. Remember the protests, Denny Dent's portraits of Jimi Hendrix and Stevie Wonder?

It's not only the center of campus but the center of student activity.

STUDY

All photos Joseph Mathis

'Study'. . . The emotions brought on by this word will never change. Generations of students have been bombarded with guilt, angst, tears, and understanding when they have studied or even been told to study.

For some, studying comes easy and they breeze through calculus or linguistics assignments in half the time of their classmates. For others, reading and understanding the philosophies of Kant or decoding computer programs is next to impossible.

Studying is part of a vicious circle where those who do without it are done with. So, 'study on' knowing that you are not alone in your drudgery and 'party on' after finals when it doesn't matter.

CAMPUS BUILDINGS

The buildings on campus play a significant role in the legendary 'Northeastern Run-around.'

Registration in Matthews Arena is a chore in itself, but when courses get closed on students the game begins.

Start: Matthews Arena. Finish: anytime later that day — hopefully.

The first place to go is the registrar's office to pick up the closed-course admit form. The next stop is the professor's office to sweet-talk him into opening the course for another student and have him sign the form.

Those tasks completed, the department head is hunted down and threatened to sign the form. After that, the completed form is returned to the registrar's office, so that someone can lose it. Repeat the process until enrolled in the course.

More mind boggling run-arounds include changing divisions, majors and residence halls. But during the almost endless journey to get into a course, the student seemingly enters all campus buildings except maybe the Shawmut booth on Forsyth Street, because getting into a closed course is one of the few things that doesn't cost extra at Northeastern.

Gary Makredes

NU GREEKS

The 'Greek' community of Northeastern is comprised of dedicated, hard-working men and women. These students work together for self-improvement, group life, and community spirit.

Change is not prevalent in these groups because over the years they have always been dedicated to servicing the community around them. This includes collecting food for the poor at Thanksgiving, visiting the elderly, and this year, collecting goods for GIs overseas.

The groups covered by the Panhellenic Council and Inter-Fraternity Council are shining examples of involvement at Northeastern.

HUSKY 'FAN'ATICS

Have you ever entered Matthews Arena to the sounds of "All Hail" being played by the Pep Band or heard people at Parson's Field screaming "GO, HUSKIES!"?

High-spirited, eager students proud to show support for the home team paint on their game faces and shout cheers for the dogs this side of The Fenway. Northeastern excels in many sports: soccer and field hockey in fall to crew and baseball in spring.

Each fan is a precious commodity to the members of Northeastern's teams. Most people would not play for an empty stadium. Members of the Cheerleading Squads, Husky Key, Pep Band, and the Zoo Crew attend each home game with a vengeance to keep this from happening.

For enthusiasm and spirit nothing beats a Husky Fan.

Football team's season 'sacked'

Northeastern's football team may have finally found the end of the storm.

After struggling through a season of torture in 1990, compiling a 1-10 record and playing a lot of sub-par football, the Huskies now look ahead to a new regime and conference affiliation.

NU was the football version of the "Bad News Bears," losing the football with amazing proficiency, while giving up huge tracts of yardage each game. The lone Husky victory of the season was a 52-6 drubbing of division II Lock Haven University.

The Huskies were on the receiving end of many other blastings, including a 42-7 slaughter-loss to the University of Maine Black Bears and a 59-6 lambasting from the hands of the University of New Hampshire.

The football team's new coach, Barry Gallup, took over when 10-year veteran Paul Pawlak retired the position days after the end of the season. Gallup comes from Boston College and is one of the most respected recruiters in New England.

The Huskies also were the recipients of good news as they were invited into the Yankee Conference. The Huskies will begin play in the new league in 1993.

Field Hockey team wins NAC title, finishes with top 10 rank in nation

The 1990 field hockey team had many expectations when the season began. After making the NCAA tournament for the second straight year in 1989, this year's team was to be no different.

Their first two games were steps in the right direction, with a 3-2 victory over Northwestern and a 2-0 victory over Dartmouth. But the bigger step would come when they faced the defending national champion North Carolina. The Huskies would have liked nothing better than to dethrone the Tar Heels, who had knocked them out of the tournament in 1989. It was close, but North Carolina edged out the Northeastern squad 3-2.

Led by senior co-captains Jen Deo and Ann Couto, NU went 10-2-1 in their next 13 games. Things were looking up for the Huskies and a berth into the NCAA Tournament appeared inevitable.

Then things started turning grim. In the last four regular season games the Huskies did not earn a victory, instead they finished with two ties and two losses. About the only thing that could get them into the NCAAs would be to win the North Atlantic Conference Tournament.

Their first opponent was the University of New Hampshire, whom they tied during the season. But the regular season was tossed aside as NU won when it counted most, squeaking past UNH 1-0, with Deo scoring and Deb Sweeney assisting. This added to Sweeney's tally of assists. She broke the Northeastern all-time assist record of 30 this year in only three seasons by notching her 34th assist.

In the championship game against cross-town rival Boston University, NU settled for nothing less than a victory as BU defeated them in the regular season in overtime 1-0. The Huskies stormed out to a 1-0 lead on the Terriers in the first half, with a goal by Denise Turchi. The goal stood until the final buzzer, and NU celebrated their first annual NAC Field Hockey Championship.

Named to the All-Tournament team for the season were goalie Brenda Mitchell, Kelly Wilk, Deo and Sweeney, who was also named the MVP of the tournament.

Named to the All-NAC team for the season were Kelly West, Deo, Sweeney and Wilk. Head Coach Cheryl Murtagh was also named the NAC Coach of the Year.

Everyone's attention was now being turned to the NCAA Tournament, which NU made for the third consecutive year. The first round pitted them against Providence College. Deo scored the first goal for NU, and Wilk finished them off with another goal as the Huskies won the hard fought battle 2-1.

In the second round NU faced the same team they did the previous year in this round — North Carolina. It was also a similar outcome as the Tar Heels defeated the Huskies 3-1, with Wilk getting the lone goal for NU.

Named to the All-American second team was Wilk. Named to the regional All-American first team were Mitchell, Sweeney and Wilk, while Deo made the regional All-American second team.

Thus, it was the end of another successfull season for Northeastern who finished 15-6-3.

Soccer team kicks butt

The soccer team continued the quest for respectability this year by compiling its first winning season, coming within one victory of an elusive playoff berth.

Head coach Keith Cammidge, the driving force behind the turnaround of soccer at NU, saw his highest goal of a winning season become a reality. But his second goal of making the playoffs slipped by the Huskies when the University of Hartford beat them 1-0 in the season finale.

The future is extremely bright for Northeastern soccer. The Huskies only lost a few players from last year's team, and many key players will return for next season's run for the playoffs.

The program is one of the university's most improved and will be a force next year.

Back to Back Champs

There's no stopping Northeastern's women's volleyball program. It's gaining momentum after two straight Eastern College Athletic Conference championships.

Seniors Linda Dormuth, of Camp Hill, Penn., and Mary Tyler, of Chelmsford, Mass., led the nine-member squad to another winning season behind the coaching of Maria DiClemente and assistant coach Marlo Levangie.

Juniors Christine Frein, Dori Pancoast and Nicole Paolucci will return next year, leading the team with six other returning players: Shana Finucane, Jodie Humphrey, Nancy Laitenan, Patricia Lemoi, Patricia Tammaro and Kimberly Watterson.

With nine players returning, Northeasetern can count on another strong team next year. The Dockser Gym bleachers were a little more full this year. Maybe next year they'll have to move to Cabott for more spectator seating.

Men's volleyball club exists at NU

In case you didn't know, Northeastern has a men's volleyball "club" (non-varsity status). It's too bad we couldn't get any stats — they were pretty good this year. The guys on the team we asked for team results must have been busy practicing their killer spikes.

Gymnasts: another winning season

The NU gymnastics squad broke more records this year, and one record was broken twice.

Most of the records were team records in specific events, but the most impressive one was scoring 184.35 points against Cornell to set a new record and breaking that record less than a month later against Yale by scoring 185.25 points.

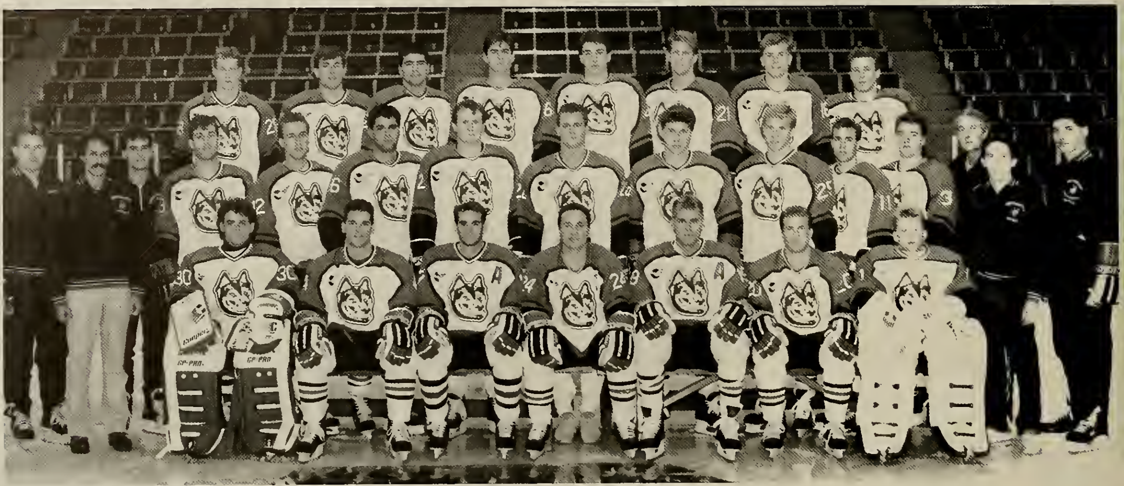
Men's Hockey comes close in ECAC series after skating through a pathetic season



JET Commercial Photographers

The Northeastern hockey team struggled through an 8-25-2 season that could have been so much better.

Injuries and lackadaisical play killed these Huskies as Jay Schiavo (ankle) and Bob Kellogg (mono) were both lost for most of the season, and the team played with a lack of emotion on several occasions.

After a moribund regular season, including a 5-3 loss to Boston College in the first round of the Beanpot and a regular beating throughout the Hockey East, the Huskies heated up for the playoffs. The first victim was Boston College, which fell 6-5 in one of the greatest games in Northeastern History. But they fell to the University of Maine 4-3 in overtime at Boston Garden.

One of the few highlights of the season was the play of goaltender Tom Cole. The "Cole"tender came to life just before the Beanpot and was on fire during the playoffs. He protected the net from as many as 30 to 40 shots per game. He also amazed a reporter from the now defunct National sports daily newspaper.

Also, senior captain Rob Cowie was announced as the winner of the Herb Gallagher Award, given annually to the best NU male student/athlete.

The postseason enthusiasm and hope was dampened when head coach Don McKenney retired just after the season.

UNH bumps NU women off ECAC throne

Huskies beat Harvard in Beanpot final

Chalk up another Beanpot victory for the lady huskies, making it their eighth in a row.

Although they had another winning season of 20 victories and seven losses, 20-5 the year before, they lost to the team they went 2-2 against during the regular season — UNH.

Laura Schueler lead the team in goals with 20 this year. She also lead in points with 33.

Goaltender Sue Guay logged 1033 minutes in the crease, earning a 12-6-0 record and a goal against average of 2.55. Michelle Distefano tended goal for nine games, only allowing nine goals for a 1.33 GAA.

Other key members in the 1990-'91 squad were Jeanine Sobek, Michelle Wortman, Shelly Looney, Rayanne Conway, Teresa Moriarty, Linda Lundigran, Kelly Rose, Laura Bennion, Maureen Robinson, Catherine Rice, Captain Maryann Forbes, Michelle Nordin and Marion Corcoran.

Husky hoopsters grab NAC crown

NCAA bid matches NU against #1 regional seed

The ball bounced the right way all season until the Northeastern men's basketball team meet with the University of North Carolina during the first round of the NCAA championships at the Syracuse Carrier Dome.

They stomped to a 22-11 record, beating University of Maine by 11 points during the finals of the North Atlantic Conference championships. The Huskies had a seven game winning streak going into the first round of the NCAA championship. They had the momentum, but their opponent had the playoff experience and a powerhouse team. UNC finished in the final four.

This was the third time Northeastern has earned an NCAA bid. The last time NU went to the NCAAs was when Husky legend Reggie Lewis played at Matthews Arena before turning pro for the Boston Celtics. And before that it was 1981 that they got in.

Women hoopsters on the rocks

Northeastern's women's basketball team struggled through the season, only winning three games.

Michele Brown lead the team with 315 points this year with an average of 11.7 points per game.

The team only lost one member from the year before and expected to have a better season. Last year the team won six games and lost 23. Hey, what can we say?. . .better luck next year.

Swimmers have ok season

Huskies splash to third in NACs, seventh in New England

The Huskies had one of those seasons that starts with a victory but is followed by a loss, another victory, another loss. . .you know the routine.

The losses got the better of that roller coaster ride season, but the NU swimmers did have a few good moments such as placing third in the North Atlantic Conference Championships and seventh in the New England Championship meet.

Their record, however, didn't hit the team as badly as head coach Janet Swanson's announcement she was retiring.

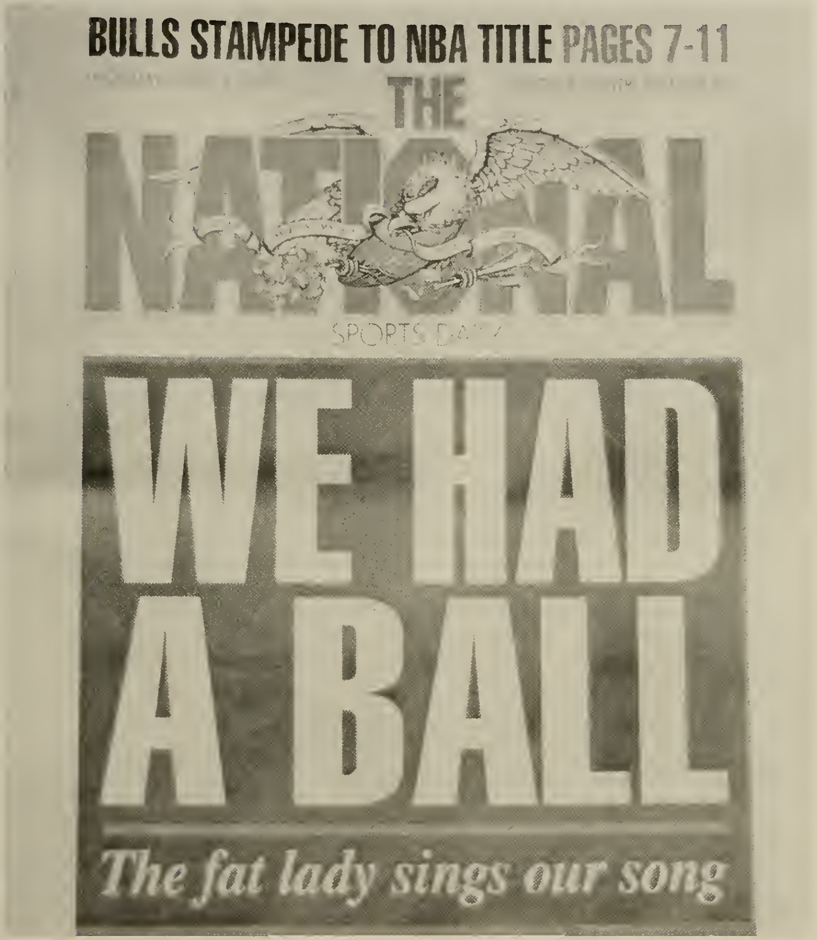
Sports daily newspaper Strikes Out



BULLS STAMPEDE TO NBA TITLE PAGES 7-11

THE NATIONAL

SPORTS DAILY

WE HAD A BALL

The fat lady sings our song

The debut and demise of the first and possibly last sports daily newspaper transpired during our years at Northeastern. For those who never read the newspaper it did relate to Northeastern, and it was a good source for information on the sports world.

The newspaper's Boston columnist, Steve Buckley, wrote about the 1991 Beanpot, praising Tom Cole and poking a little fun at the Northeastern News for printing a Beanpot special edition when we had the worst ranked team in the NAC.

Only 393 issues after they opened, they folded. They took a shot, aiming at the American daily sports market, but missed like an air ball. One criticism of the paper was it only covered the main American sports. More circulation probably could have been earned if they followed sports where goals didn't exist or a ball wasn't required.

They had tunnel vision and couldn't acknowledge other sports Americans participate in. There's more to sports than baseball, basketball, hockey, football, golf and boxing.

Some just said that the market didn't exist for a daily sports newspaper.

Criticism went to the publisher for not keeping at it long enough. They were expected to lose money during the first year. They lost again their second year — so they quit. It was good while it lasted, but it could have been better.

Tennis team nets good season

The men's tennis team had a slow start in the fall with a 3-4 record, but in the spring they came on stronger, posting a 6-3 record. They finished the season placing eleventh out of 26 teams at the New England Tournament.

Drilled by coach Scott Bevins, senior-captain Robert Curtin led the team with co-captain Benoit Burin DesRoziers. With only the loss of Curtain to graduation and both Robert Shetler and John Tracy to their last year of eligibility, next year's team will be one to watch.

Team members expected to return are DesRoziers, Steve Garrison, Ty Hughes, Curtis Meyer, Tim Ngo, Alex Vidal, Martin Deabbad, Kevin Kotelly and Todd Porigow.

NU sluggers improve record

Huskies disappointed at Baseball Beanpot

Northeastern Baseball turned their 1989-90 record of 26-20 around to show everyone just how good they really are. They compiled a 35-15 record, beating some top teams in and out of New England.

Although they were massacred during the first game of the baseball beanpot 15-1 to Harvard but beat Boston College 11-1 in the consolation game.

Men's Crew places second at Nationals, loses race by .07 seconds

The crew teams had one of the best seasons in the history of Northeastern rowing. The men's varsity eight boat battled the University of Pennsylvania for the number one position in collegiate rowing. Penn beat NU in the first two encounters, but the Huskies came back to win the next two, including the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta.

But when the National Championships were on the line, the Huskies got nipped. They lost the most important race of their lives by .07 seconds — about 12 inches.

The women's junior varsity captured the gold medal in their classification at the Nationals, showing that next year's varsity has some strong members that can grab the oars left behind by graduating seniors.

This was the first time Northeastern had come so close to a national championship in crew. However, it would not have been the first ever national championship earned by the university as said by all university publications. Remember the women's hockey team in 1988? We did.

CO-OPERATIVE EDUCATION

Joseph Mathis

Joseph Mathis

The metamorphosis from academic to co-op quarter for "The Education That Works."

It is a pleasure for me, as a spokesperson for the Department of Cooperative Education, to extend congratulations to the Class of 1991 upon your graduation from Northeastern University.

This is an occasion which you have anticipated for what must seem to be a very long time. While it signals the end of one chapter in your lives, it is also the threshold of a new challenge, one which you are uniquely equipped to face. As Northeastern undergraduates you already know the world beyond our campus. Now, as you begin your postgraduate careers, you will represent to your communities, to your families and friends, and to the work place "The Changing Faces of Northeastern University". In the classroom you have received academic training from a teaching faculty committed to providing an excellent formal education. Through Co-op, which has been an integral part of the Northeastern experience for the vast majority of you, you have had the added advantage of an education buttressed by frequent exposure to the world of work. It is fitting for each of us who has played a role in your development to acknowledge the very real contributions which you have already made as Co-op students and to speculate on your potential for further achievement.

In keeping with the theme of this year's Cauldron, I can report that during your tenure at the University, and especially during your final undergraduate year, there have been a number of changes in the faces housed in the Russell B. Stearns Center for Cooperative Education. Most significantly, since July, 1990, we have increased the faculty, professional staff and resource commitment in the College of Arts and Sciences and in International Cooperative Education. And, even as I write this letter, we are conducting a national search for a new Vice President for Cooperative Education. When you return to visit the University in the years ahead I invite you to stop by Stearns Center to see the Department of Cooperative Education, strengthened, and even better prepared to relate directly to student needs and to the issues which they must face in an ever changing global society.

As Northeastern University graduates you are about to become the latest members of a very highly regarded fellowship; alumni of the premier institution in the world full committed to Cooperative Education. I wish you every success in your future endeavors.

Sincerely,

Paul M. Pratt

CO-OP in WASHINGTON, D.C.

When Senior Ross Duhaime began looking for his last NU co-op job, for the Winter '91 quarter, little did this staunch Republican expect to be working for Democrat Joseph P. Kennedy II (D, Massachusetts). Kennedy's office was the workplace of Ross from January 1 — March 22, 1991.

The Co-op department had this job listed for political science majors. Ross, a Business Administration major with a concentration in Logistics and Management, was in the Co-op office when friend Dave Wescott, the previous holder of this particular position, came to him with information that the position was open. Given approximately 15 minutes to make his decision, Ross jumped at the chance. He hoped that this introduction to politics would help him to get into the field in the future.

Not only was Ross lucky enough to get this position, he also was selected for a prestigious Lyndon Banes Johnson Congressional Scholarship while working in Congress. Student interns are picked for this award based on academic performance and extracurricular activities. With this award he got a stipend for working in Congress.

While the internship involved a lot of the mundane duties that many students suffer while on co-op including making copies, faxing documents, and acting as general support staff, Ross got to do a few things that many dream of getting to do. Ross worked on several major projects through Kennedy's office, such as the Indoor Equality Act of 1991. The two most exciting projects were helping with the release of the Birmingham 6 and doing the fact-finding research leading to his writing a memo to Congressman Kennedy explaining why he should sign the Alaskan National Wildlife Refuge bill. On a few occasions Ross wrote speeches for Kennedy, and eventually one set of remarks that Ross wrote were published in the Federal Record.

When not engaged in a priority task Ross occasionally went to listen in at some Senate Committee meetings including the Banking committee, the National Weather Service committee, and the Public Works and Transportation committee.

While on co-op in Washington, D.C. Ross lived with three other NU students at the Oakwood Apartments on South Van Dorn Street in Alexandria, VA. Nearby attractions that Ross snuck away to on weekends included the city of Washington, D.C. itself, Skyline Drive in the Shenandoah Valley, and Virginia Beach.

Bonnie Bentley

As Ross was leaving Kennedy's office to come back to Boston in March, Kennedy posed to have his photo taken with Ross and commented: "Now you can go back to being a radical republican again." Ross felt that he definitely learned a lot from the liberal Congressman while there for three months, but says that he would not go back as an intern after graduation. But, it's not such a bad co-op job after all.

co-op, rockets way to job offer

Engineering student has a blast at NASA job, takes co-op a step higher: outer space

Many Northeastern students can only dream about the ideal co-op company. Maureen Bibeault worked at the company of her dreams.

Bibeault, a mechanical engineering major and 1991 graduate, worked her last three co-ops at NASA headquarters in Houston, Texas. NASA also offered her a full-time position upon graduation.

All her life she fantasized about being an astronaut, and she figured the NASA job was the best start toward that goal.

"I wanted to be an astronaut, but I didn't know what field I wanted to go into — I just wanted to be an astronaut," she said.

She became a space junkie at a young age and credits her interest in the galaxy to her older brother. Whatever he read or watched on television that related to outer space, she followed close behind. "If 'The Right Stuff' was on television, I would watch it," she said.

After a year at Northeastern she looked into the NASA job and found that NASA had the atypical co-op interview.

"There was a one hour talk on the phone," Bibeault said. "I sent them my application and waited a few weeks and called them."

She continued calling them every few months, updating her transcript. She also supplied a copy of her co-op evaluation from the Foxboro Company, where she was a quality assurance test engineer, testing transmitters in severe environmental conditions.

About Halloween of 1988 she got a letter stating that the co-op job was hers, and she could start Jan. 9, 1989. Bibeault was excited but also a little scared.

"I felt really nervous. Here I am from up North, and I don't know a soul from Texas," she said. But she couldn't let this opportunity go. "I just packed up my car and left."

She left Dec. 26, and 10 hours later that day in Baltimore, Md., her car collided with another. A little shaken, she continued her journey. A car accident wasn't enough to stop her — she was NASA bound. Besides, the car still ran — it just had a large dent on he left side, behind the rear wheel.

However, Bibeault's parents were a ittle worried about their then 20-year-old. "I was a little kid — the first time out of the house, and my mom wanted o pick me up," she said.

The 2,000 mile trip hasn't been so bad the past five times since that first semi-nightmare.

The first quarter working for NASA bored Bibeault. The entire three month co-op she calibrated space hardware including pressure gauges on space suits and other instruments such as scales. "After three months of that I hated it," she said. "There was no decision making involved."

More interesting work was occurring in the Propulsion and Power Division, another part of NASA. Bibeault wanted to work there and found that she could do more as a test manager in that division.

Moving to the other division on her next co-op proved to be a wise decision. Now Bibault could work on projects that were more difficult and more important. Not every day was exciting, but she had climbed a step professionally.

The new job kept her busy, and during one period she was working on five projects simultaneously. "You had some fast days where you had to work late and some slow days that you had to type all day," Bibeault said. "My favorite part was running the tests."

Once, she was told to put aside all her projects and complete another one within a week. For this project she had to run tests to determine whether flow control valves, devices that monitor the flow of hydrogen during the space shuttle liftoff, could work properly for 15 minutes. Bibeault's tests showed that the valves could work for a much longer period — at least 30 hours.

Before she started the project she was told how the information she gathered from the project was needed before the next shuttle liftoff and that she had to meet her deadline. The information was important but not life or death.

"I was told that the information I got was not going to ground the shuttle, but it's gone down in the shuttle manual," she said. "That's the biggest thing I did at NASA."

While at Northeastern, Bibeault was a member and corresponding secretary of Tau Beta Pi, the national honor society for mechanical engineers. She was also a member of Pi Tau Sigma, Northeastern's mechanical engineering honor society.

Before she came to Northeastern, Bibeault had her career planned out, and the co-op program was a major reason she attended the university. "I knew I wanted to get there (NASA), but I didn't know how I was going to get there," she said.

Bibeault didn't boast about her great co-op job. She doesn't look at it that way. To her it's just a job she likes.

"I got in (to NASA). I don't know why I got in," she said. "I don't consider it a big job, so I don't pronounce it to the world."

When she first got to Houston, where she lived for the first few weeks, she couldn't wait to see NASA headquarters. "Let's go to NASA. Let's go to NASA," Bibeault told her new roommate, another college student who worked there for a while. Her roommate drove Bibeault to NASA headquarters and said, 'There's NASA. Now can we go home?'"

Little did Bibeault know Texas would become her new home.

SCENIC BOSTON

What sets Boston apart from other cities in the world? The customs and culture of the people here are unique, but the manmade or controlled scenery found in this city are the true marvels of humanity and its advances.

Whether you are talking about the Landmark, the worlds first high-rise tower, located in the center of downtown Boston; the Prudential and Hancock Towers, the two 50+ story buildings in Boston; the prized rose garden of the Fens, for which Fenway Park was aptly named; the beauty of the Christian Science Center, located down the road from NU campus; or the Freedom Trail in the world famous Boston Commons you will find the wonderous scenery that makes up Boston.

Boston is full of manmade wonders that show that nature doesn't produce the only beauty in the world. One has only to look at the artwork put into artifices and the sides of buildings to see what mankind is capable of doing.

NU Times

Dynamic relationships with professors help NU students discover their world.

SPOTLIGHT ON:

Richard D'Errico

It was the summer of '86. The carefree days before embarking on a five-year trek called college. The hazy days were filled with anticipation, filled with promise. The days were quite different for Nicholas Daniloff.

NICHOLAS DANILOFF

Daniloff is currently a professor at Northeastern in the School of Journalism. But in August of 1986, Daniloff was sitting in a prison in Lefortovo, Moscow. This occured just weeks before his five-year stint with US News & World Report was drawing to a close.

What led to his imprisonment on charges of espionage, were a set of ill-timed events involving a Soviet spy, Gennadi Fyodorovich Zakharov. Zakharov was a physicist who was working for the United Nations Secretariat, while posing as a physicist who obtained information from unsuspecting graduate students.

In short, after the FBI had gotten their man, the Soviets needed a pawn.

"The Soviet secret police wanted a bargaining chip," explained Daniloff. "They could always get you if they wanted you."

The Soviet secret police used one of Daniloff's sources, Misha, to betray him.

"That's a well-known technique of intelligence and counterintelligence," said Daniloff.

He went on to outline the procedure. How the Soviet secret police has one of its members enter into a friendly relationship with someone that builds over a period of years. After your source gives accurate information to that person time and again, the trust level builds.

"Then someday when they have a need they get this person to give you some secret documents and you accept them because you trust the guy."

And that's exactly what happened.

While in prison for two weeks, Daniloff recalls what he describes as "one of the most difficult moments." When US News & World Report publisher visited him in prison, and "he said to me that Reagan had announced publicly that the United States was not going to arrange any exchange. That was not exactly a pleasant moment. Because it was obvious that the reason the Soviets had arrested me was to get their guy out of prison in New York."

Unsettled by the news, Daniloff still made it clear that he backed the president's position.

"This did not exactly please the Soviets much," he said. "What can you do? From prison you're not going to get the president to change his mind. You might as well agree with it."

But the exchange did eventually take place, a "two-step exchange." First the release of prisoners to the custodies of the respective embassies and restricting them in their movements to New York and Moscow. In the meantime, a diplomatic solution was being arranged. That arrangement included having Zakharov put on trial, change his plea from "not guilty" to "nolo contendere" meaning he did not dispute the charges of espionage against him.

He was found guilty of espionage and expelled from the US. In Moscow, "the Soviets dropped the charges they had against me. I left the Soviet Union the day before Zakharov was expelled from the United States." A Soviet dissident, Yuri Orlov, was also released from Siberia.

Ten days later Daniloff was on a plane for Iceland to cover the United States-Soviet Union Summit.

That all took place five years ago. In the fall of 1989, Northeastern University "made me an offer I couldn't refuse," and as a result, Daniloff began to teach at the School of Journalism. The Harvard and Oxford alumnus, enjoys teaching at the university.

"It's an interesting school. It seems to me that it has students who are interested in learning," said Daniloff. "A school that doesn't have a lot of arrogance or pretention."

Keep in mind that I spent 30 years as a journalist, rather than as a professor. My experience here is, in a way, new for me and unique," said Daniloff. "I spent a fair amount of time at Harvard in one way or another. I was an undergraduate there and came back there in mid-career as a Nieman Fellow."

Daniloff would then finish his Moscow assignment in 1986, write a book about working and living there, "Two Lives, One Russia," and be offered a position at the Shorenstein Barone Center on Press, Politics, and Public Policy at Harvard.

"Northeastern is a contrast to all that," said Daniloff, "because Northeastern is not the sort of wealthy school that Harvard is. Its academic reputation is a little different than Harvard's is." A little.

He continued: "But the thing I find very nice about Northeastern is that it is filled with what I would describe as nice people who are not constantly stabbing you in the back as the scholars are at Harvard. Northeastern is a place where it seems to me there's a considerable seriousness among the student body, because many of the student body are trying to pull themselves up by their own bootstraps. They're working themselves though a university career, and I find that admirable. I like that a lot."

Daniloff said all that has happened to him with the Soviet Union is in the past. Oddly enough, this past spring, Daniloff traveled to the Soviet Union with several journalism students to learn more about the place he left behind.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Inside the Ell Student Center there are at least two offices that are extremely busy at all times. One is the office of Student Center Dean Gail Olyha, and the other is the office of Director of the Student Activities Stephanie Palubicki.

While Gail has been here almost 10 years, Stephanie came on board in the fall of 1990. There have been many changes since the class of 1991 entered the hallowed halls of the Carl Stevens Ell Student Center in the fall of 1986. Most marked have been the advances in the improvement of services to the students.

The Copy Center has undergone major renovation, along with its companion service the Scheduling and Reservation Area. A PC lab was added to the third floor of the student center. A new travel service was added just this past fall. Club Ell opened in 1986. Besides these major changes have been beautification and cosmetic changes to the 'building of the students'. New furniture was purchased for student group offices, the Information Booth was rebuilt, the meeting rooms were redone and especially recarpeted. Facilities have been upgraded giving users of the building more flexibility and more choices in their meeting plans.

A major change that few people saw take place but impacted them all was the rebuilding of the Northeastern News publishing complex. With those renovations the students are now able to do every part of production of the paper themselves, except for the actual printing. The desktop publishing area has given the student media more autonomy.

Over the years the activity level of the groups has increased along with the diversity of the groups. For example, in 1990 students saw the outgrowth of journalistic competition with the introduction of the NU Times. Now the groups that are making an impact are no longer NU orientated only. Groups that are globally oriented like SEA, STAR, and NUROW have grown in membership. Community service projects have grown in number and occurence.

JEFFREY GAQUIN

July 29, 1968 — January 13, 1991

As life progresses our nature is to grow and decide what directions we are to seek. Once we take heart to something, we work hard to become the best. When looking at Jeffrey S. Gaquin, we saw a man who knew his directions in life. He was a very dedicated and hard working person. Jeff always showed a smile and was concerned about his friends. His comments would make people laugh and enjoy life when moments of stress and pain were high.

Jeff was an involved member of the "Geology Family". From classes to field trips to hiking in the mountains, midnight camp fires, crooked smiles, surprise parties, and finals, he is dearly missed. Jeff was a person who was full of life, and ready to experience all he could. His love of life, his sense of adventure, his easy going characteristic were all qualities that we admired in him.

He was a very involved member of Terra Society, Students for Environmental Awareness (SEA), and the Outing Club. His passion to make the world a better place to live was reflected by his academic pursuit in Environmental Geology.

Quotes excerpted from the field trip logs written by Jeff:

> "After a delightful 2.5 hour flight on Ken Ryder's personal Lear Jet the N.U. Geology Crew was back in Boston in plenty of time to catch 'Waynes World' on Saturday Night Live. April Fools Day!! In reality we continue the now infamous Hell-Ride from S. Florida to Boston. . ."
> — Bahamas field trip

> "The truth is that I am still amazed that I made this trip. . .Bass fishing down the Cape cannot compare to the experience, education, and fun that I am getting in the Pacific Northwest."
> — Oregon/Washington field trip

COLOPHON

Volume 71 of the Northeastern University Cauldron was printed on Recycled Paper by the Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, Texas. The 304 page book had a press run of 2,500.

The cover is of a base material of embossed white #848 with a brick grain. Applied colors of the title are red #804 and black #910. The endsheets are colored granite block #001. The printing on the front endsheet done in a silver foil.

The paper used for the 16 color pages is 80 pound enamel while all of the other pages are an 80 pound matte. While a variety of type styles are used throughout this book, most of the headlines and sub-headlines are 30 or 18 point Nouveau. The standard body copy type was 10 point Ballardvale Standard with a leading of 12.

Senior portraits were taken by Varden Studios of Rochester, New York. The yearbooks were a fall delivery, and the books were distributed to all graduating seniors free of charge. Editorial content does not necessarily reflect the views of the University.

THANK YOU!!!

The following people made our job a little bit easier in several ways. Thank you very, very, very much. To all of you helpful souls: Bless you, we will not forget your kindness!

Lucy Divirgilio; WRBB; Lou Conrad; Northeastern News; Varden Studios: especially Paul Bilgore, Mary Kay Tandoi, Chris Swope, Ginny Gross, and Craig Paulick; Taylor Publishing: especially David Honnold; Russ Sparkman; J.D. Levine; Governor's Press Office; William Bulger's Office; NU Sports Information Office: especially Jack Grinold; TKE. . .(NOT); NU Student Media Board; Student Activities Office; the Ell Center Staff, President Curry, and Chancellor Ryder. Last, but not least, we would like to thank espcially three people who came in during the last painful throws of the last FINAL deadline: Robert Abbott, Cheri Collins, and Sean Durkee. You saved our sanity.

GOOD LUCK!

To the class of 1991: Good Luck in the Future. The 1990-1991 Cauldron Executive Editors would like to thank each and every one of you individually who participated in our events, but we're too tired from finishing this book so you'll have to take our thanks from this page. Your participation made our job 50% easier. A yearbook is nothing without YOU, the reader. We hope that you enjoy the book.

And last but not least, just to let you know what we did all year besides hide out on the fourth floor of the Ell Center: the '90/'91 members were in at least twelve different student groups. Besides that the Cauldron participated in: Varden Photgraphy Workshop, SGA Leadership Retreat, New Provost Reception, SOS/Frosh Orientation, Night at the Ell Center, several Student Activities Fairs, the Student Media Board, Homecoming, ACP/CMA, all home/away sporting events, the Beanpot, NCAA basketball in Syracuse, NY, NU Alive, Dedication of the Snell Library, Reception for Senator Kennedy and ex-Speaker of the House Tip O'Neil, Senior Week, and Graduation.

Thanks.

SNELL LIBRARY OPENS

ust in time for our graduation comes the opening of the new ell Library, which will make learning at Northeastern easier d more enjoyable. With a computerized card catalog you are e to tell if a book is out BEFORE you spend hours looking for ooking back on the Dodge Library it is hard to believe that we r got anything done in there! It's exciting to have a quiet, well roomy, comfortable place to study.

lthough we did not get to use the Snell Library much, we are d that it has arrived. Thanks to many tuition dollars and the nerous donations of others (SNELL) we have a prestigious rary.

y the way, there is NO eating or drinking in this new library.

Diversification of life develops through exposure to the unexpected and unique.

War manufactures, lifts U.S. pride

The Persian Gulf war affected everyone at Northeastern as well as the country. But only some questioned our involvement there. America showed that it was a selective policeman, only helping those it chose to and disregarding others who also needed help.

People who opposed the American intervention in this war tried to exercise their right of free speech, but their muted cries were unheard by others, blindly praising Old Glory without giving thought to why we were at war or if it was worth it.

General "stormin'" Norman Schwarzkopf, as he was called, marched our boys into Kuwait. No, he didn't lead them but merely pointed them toward the Kuwaiti and Iraqi boarders and armed them with everything they could carry, drive, navigate and fly. He was safe, far behind the front line — a perfect place to sit and let the puppet American citizens praise him, ballooning his ego.

Their thoughts were seemingly controlled by Schwarzkopf as if he were the puppeteer, tugging on the strings almost commanding them to act as he wanted them to act and hear what he wanted them to hear.

The U.S. government also manipulated the people by censoring the film that was televised on the news every day. They read reporters' stories, plucking words, sentences and paragraphs from their work and substituted "better" words. And then they told America that Saddam Hussein was a criminal. Sure, he's on the level of Manuel Noriega, but who were the other criminals in this war? The U.S. government? Bingo!

They couldn't keep all of America in the dark — or at least those who wanted to know the truth. Cable News Network's Peter Arnett told us what was really happening there by showing us the destroyed powdered milk factory that the U.S. bombed, thinking it was a chemical weapons plant. We also saw the residential building the troops bombed, this time thinking it was a military bunker.

Billions of taxpayers' dollars were wasted sending the troops a third of the way around the world at a time when the economy barely floated in the toilet of depression. The money spent could have helped financially strapped towns around the country, the poor and the homeless.

If it weren't for a few factors, there probably wouldn't have been a war. There was the villain — Saddam Hussein, high oil prices and a president that hadn't done anything noteworthy during his first term. He needed to maintain a positive public opinion and accomplish something he could cash in on at reelection time. Besides, wars tend to boost employment and economies. A rebuilt economy would have looked good.

But it was just a game to people like Schwarzkopf. He said it himself. "V came to play ball," he said in an i terview with British journalist Dav Frost on Easter Sunday. Our troops we also damn lucky.

The Iraqi soldiers knew they couldı handle a force the strength of ours. Th deserted by the thousand, surrenderi to American forces. We were fortuna they didn't fight, because there wou have been more Americans killed.

The four-star general also created country of Arab haters, who didn't ju loath Hussein but everyone in Iraq. Bi otry of Arab-Americans soared. One sc dier on his way to fight said he was goi to "kill a few arabs."

Was it worth it?

At the end of that Easter intervie with Schwarzkopf, the names of those Americans killed in the Gu scrolled up the television screen. The were two names that stuck out — P vates Michael Fitz and Robert Talley.

Most of America had never hea these names. They didn't know the boys or where they were from. There one thing about these two boys that all should remember — their age. Th were the two youngest soldiers.

Both were 18.

Students pocket all kinds of 'stuff'

We'll never forget those things we arried in the pockets of our jeans and ckets. We needed this "stuff" to get rough each day. Carrying some ems was as important as wearing a fe vest on a boat.

But if someone robbed a student, ey would feel gypped. This is what ey would get.

Notebook: everyone had to take otes in something. We learned early at loose-leaf or spiral binders were andard issue as student gear.

Pen and pencils: For taking notes nd those damn multiple choice comuter-corrected exams. Did we really eed a "#2" or was it just a scam for e university to get us to buy their encils?

Cassette player: What better way to rget about classes is there than pluging that favorite tape into a alkman® and strapping on eadphones?

Library Card: Until recently stuents couldn't get by without a Boston ublic Library card. The completion nd opening of the Snell Library elped many students, but some found at they still needed the BPL for some ssignments.

Umbrella: Commuters who even ensed that it might rain later in the day toted compact, pop-out models just in case.

Sunglasses: For days when the sun actually shined on the quad and babe or hunk watching. Mirrored, of course.

Textbook: a necessary evil.

Paperback: Some good reading after the textbook seized the mind.

Hard Rock Cafe button: A souvenir from a cool place to celebrate a roommates 21st birthday or anything else.

Keys and key chains: Everyone had keys for their dorm or apartment. Some had cars. A cool key chain added a touch of class.

Sports schedule: This was indispensable. They gave students a listing of what teams were playing home games.

Ticket stubs: The ticket stub from the NCAA championships became a nice piece of Northeastern memorabilia even though we did get crushed in the first game to UNC, a top four team in the nation. There were also some hockey games that just couldn't be missed — Lowell, BU and the Bean Pot.

Wallet: This carried some very important items such as a driver's license (or fake ID) that got you into Maxwell's, a couple of dollars (NU students will always be too busy paying tuition bills to have more than a couple bucks on them). A money card was crucial for those unpremeditated stops at Our House after a hockey game or just when you needed another couple bucks. A, MBTA map helped us figure how long it would take to get from here to anywhere on the "T."

Spare change: It came in handy when the dollars ran out.

Pocket lint: Something every NU student has. Too bad we couldn't use it to pay our tuition.

Northeastern ID: Don't leave home without it. No health/athletic clearance hole, no admittance to Cabot Gym.

Book bag: Where a lot more "stuff" was kept. (Not pictured because all that "stuff" broke the seams. It had to be thrown away.)

Duke gets dumped, Weld new gov.

William Weld became the new governor of Massachusetts in January 1991, ousting democrat Michael Dukakis. Weld was also the first republican governor elected in the state in 16 years.

After Dukakis failed trying to ride the "Massachusetts Miracle" into the U.S. presidency, he decided it was time to retire his governorship. Weld took over, promising to mend the state's financial woes, but his plan cut aid to towns and caused them to lay off police officers, firefighters, teachers and other town workers.

Some were happy to see "The Duke" go, but others wept at his departure. Before Dukakis left he propelled Northeastern's plans for a state indoor track complex by signing a bill, accepting the proposal for the complex to be built on university land.

Snow makes NU a winter 'wonder'land. . .

Very little snow fell in the winter of 1990-91. But at the sight of first snow, freshmen from southern states seemed more excited than the ones who were used to it.

Snow buffs started waxing their skis, skaters sharpened their skates and everyone else took time to make at least one snowball and throw it at a friend. However, there wasn't enough snow this year to build a snowman on Mt. Ryder.

Those who didn't like the season seemingly hibernated in their rooms and turned the radiator on full blast. They waited for the arrival of spring break and warmer months ahead.

. . . Spring fever plagues campus

Spring quarter 1991 took five years to reach (longer for some) and only 11 weeks to get through, marking the end of our careers as college students. But spring quarter wasn't that bad. The sun came out on the quad and so did many students.

Most students studied the fine arts of lounging, tanning or quadulating during spring quarter. And spring time romances popped up all over campus.

For some it was the last time they could rest before starting post NU careers or summer/fall co-op jobs. Others were just warming up for a summer in the unemployment line.

The Gamma Phi Kappa Fraternity was founded at Northeastern in 1925. In the past year, important events have occured that will change our lives at our house on Vancouver Street. Our two beloved fraternity brothers, Scott Whalen and Phil Bliss, were sent to Saudi Arabia to fight for our country. Their courageousness and bravery have given our fraternity a new sense of determination to strive and accomplish a height of importance at Northeastern never felt before. We wish to extend our wishes for them to all family and friends of Scott and Phil, and pray for their safe return to our welcoming house.

THE ACADEMY OF ARTS & SCIENCES

The Academy, the honor society of the College of Arts & Sciences at Northeastern University, had a busy fall quarter of 1990. They sponsored a lecture series with three faculty members and a local meteorologist, while three of their officers were on co-op! They also had a non-existant party with lots of pizza and drinks. The winter quarter brought a highly publicized lecture by Dr. Jack Levin coordinated by a few dedicated members. A help table at the Dean's Office during winter registration had lots of questions with hopefully just as many answers. The well attended annual banquet was held during the spring to culminate another successful year for the Academy.

NUBBIES!

Nubbie: A musically inclined NU student. Either dressed in casual red and black, or formal black and white.

On move-in day I was greeted by a poster, announcing the NU Bands. A week later I went to rehearsal in Ruggles. There I found the Concert and Pep Bands. Next, I was on a bus heading towards Harvard Stadium for a cross-town football game. ("Donut incident")

Through the Concert, Pep, Dixieland, & Jazz Bands, the Wind and Percussion Ensembles we expanded our musical knowledge. Allen (Feinstein) even had us sing! Ken (Ayoob) had a penchant for "modern" music. Remember Crystals, Tower, Apollo, or Wind Drifts?

The NU Bands have travelled widely in the past five years. Trips have included Syracuse (twice) for NCAA basketball, Philadelphia for field hockey, and Toronto and Montreal with the Concert Band. Some members have even gone to the New England Collegiate Honor Band.

Nubbies are special. Who else could understand the logic of the Saxophone Cheer (Skate on his neck) and can recite the words to the school fight song?

Through these years I have learned more than just technique, but also friendship, leadership, and dedication.

The Hillel is the Jewish student group on campus. We are located at the Frager Jewish Student Center on Parker St. The Hillel sponsors many events during the year including weekly Sabbath services and dinner on Fridays, movie nights on Thursdays, and a study session on Monday mornings. The Hillel is also a place for Jewish students to hang out with other Jewish students and is a good place to come and study in the evenings.

KEYING THE LOCK TO THE FUTURE

Paws, pom-pons, and wearing red and black are signatures of the Husky Key Society. Seniors Todd Perlmutter, Cindy Scarpa, and myself showed leadership by leading husky fans through cheers at home games. This was done with the help of the Pep Band and the Cheerleaders. The dedicated members are a close knit group that has fun. Who could ever forget the hatless Yogi Bear? Beanpots and post-game celebrations were a ball. Are all honorary members journalism majors? If there was spirit to be had — Husky Key had it! Ho Guskies, Har Har Har.

What better way to forget about post graduation worries than extracurricular activities? These activities started freshmen year with Dorm Council. I wanted to be more involved, so I helped revive the Husky Key Society. Husky Key began in the '50's but slowly deteriorated. We brought back NU's spirit organization. The sports schedule has kept me extrememly busy, but I have missed a few games due to exams. (I am trying to graduate.)

1988 I added The Academy (Honor Society of Arts & Sciences) and the Polish Students Organization. I am very involved as president of The Academy this year. It's interesting working on many diverse activities. The challenge is in trying to get people involved. (What's new?)

I have worked a lot with Homecoming. The most fun (and frustration) for the students and alumni is building floats and tailgating. Seeing alumni, I know that people do care about activities at NU.

I was told to slow down my masochistic schedule or hit a point of self-destruction. I took this as a challenge and added Night at the Ell Center during Freshmen Orientation Week. This was the biggest night of the fall for the Student Orientation Staff, if not for freshmen.

This year added the Senior Week Committee and the Senior Challenge Cabinet. It's all coming together finally. NU ends with senior week activities, the biggest party we will know at NU.

I'm starting to hand over responsibilites. I feel the Class of '91 has carried the other classes with its enthusiasm. Now its energies turn to the "real" world. The banquets in spring will be tearful, especially the student activities banquet. I'll be sad to leave all this stress (and fun) behind. To the Class of 1991: see you in five years at our reunion.

It's Tuesday. It's 4:30 in the morning. What the heck am I doing here?

Exactly what is it that possesses someone to join an activity that will eventually have him staring at a blank page muttering "I'm screwed, I'm royally screwed," over and over again?

Collectively, the staff of the News harbors a secret darker than the circles under our eyes on Wednesday mornings: Stress. We love it. We need it to survive.

Oh, we'll never admit it, but it's true. It just fires the ol' metabolism right up. (Some things I could do without; those sickly sweet personals from the sororities make me puke all over the keyboard. Do you have any idea how hard that is to clean up? Between the keys?)

I'll miss it. I'll miss that point around 2 a.m. when the mind snaps and suddenly everything is funny, even Colleen trying to light the filter end of her cigarette.

I'll miss trying to avoid dealing with record company PR flacks by taking messages for myself, even in person.

Most of all I'll miss the camaraderie, the esprit de corps, the knowledge that everyone else you work with is just as doomed as you are. And I'll miss our rallying war cry, our call to arms:

"We're going to Maxwell's!"

THE COURT

The University Court is the undergraduate judicial branch of the student government at Northeastern. Students in both divisions, on co-op or in classes are under its jurisdiction. In the back of the student handbook is a section called the "Code of Student Conduct." It lists the rules and regulations by which a student agrees to act while enrolled at Northeastern.

The University Court only hears severe cases of misconduct. Any other cases are decided in administrative hearings. These cases are difficult to decide. The nine student/two administrator court often finds itself in long debate over the real meaning of a case, and what message will be sent to the university community after the case is publicized.

There are many hurdles to be faced in deciding the academic future of a fellow student. Could I have done it myself under the circumstances? Is what happened ever acceptable? How can I live with myself after expelling them? How could this happen in these days and times? Whatever the verdict, it is never easy, and it is never a comfortable decision.

The members of the University Court are out to make the campus safe for the university and the surrounding community. The court Justices of both Division A and Division B work hard to serve you and to help make the environment surrounding Northeastern safe for everyone.

IN THE SENATE. . .

In 1921, Student Council Chairman Kendric P. "Dinger" Doane probably would have never guessed that the Student Government Association would be what it is today.

At that time the SGA — we were called the Student Council — was all male and principally social in nature. Our members were elected by year and the "Cheerleader" ranked second after the President. We remained this way up until the mid 1960's when the Student Council became active in the drive for a Student Center. After the Ell Center opened, the Student Council was active in its operations. This was as close to making policy as we came then.

This all changed with Vietnam. The late '60's and early '70's brought a different breed of student and the Student Council became the Student Federation. Our membership came from the student clubs and organizations, and the meetings were informal. While the Federation strived to gain respect, our authority was not recognized by the President of the University. By the 1980's, it was obvious that this system was not working.

On August 26, 1981 the Federation became the Student Government Association when President Kenneth Ryder signed our new constitution. With his signature, we were officially recognized as the voice of the students. Our Senate also began receiving its membership proportionally by college, making us far more representative of the students. In 1986, we reorganized. Until then we were arranged with a President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and Secretary. We reorganized ourselves to be like the University with Vice-Presidents of Student and Academic Affairs, Student Services, and Administration.

In the past seventy years, the SGA has gone from being a social club to a recognized, policy making body. We have grown in size, respect, and power. Indeed, we have come a long way towards our goal:to see that the University not only hears the students, but listens to them.

Dear Class of 1991:

Congratulations!! Finally, no more Lane Health Center, "Husky Five-0", "NU Shuffle", Co-ops, and Mt. Ryder. As a junior, I can say I am somewhat envious. Yet, Northeastern is the place where our thoughts become ideas. These develop the person that the world eventually gets to see. It has been a long and arduous five years, but hopefully years to look back on with nostalgia. Now, you are going out to strengthen the person and leave the process behind. As you depart from the friends, streets, and neighborhoods that have become so fond, remember that life can only be done once. . .so do it well and have fun!

I am not going to say that you will always be the Northeastern Husky you are today, but you will always have the years and memories in common with your fellow alumnae!! Having come into the University your own person, you will leave that way. You have given the University a personality and character. I wish you well on your future endeavors! Take care and be happy!

Godspeed!

PEOPLE

Northeastern would not have been half as much fun without the people here.

Remember walking into your dormroom that first day and meeting your freshman roommate? For some that person was great and you did everything together, but others considered them geeks and ignored them.

Remember those friends that helped you through the tough times or the professors who made their courses exciting and interesting?

Regardless of who they were, every student, faculty and staff member at Northeastern added a piece to its total composition. They were the heart and soul of campus.

Homecoming and Parents' Weekend began Friday, Nov. 2, 1990 in the quad. The Pep Rally kicked off the events, and participants got psyched for the weekend ahead.

On the quad the Pep Band played "All Hail," and the cheerleaders performed acrobatic stunts in front of about 350 people. Seniors Ron Nathanson and Lillian LaRosa were named The Mayor of Huntington Avenue and Homecoming Queen respectively.

Later, a few loyal groups went to the Ruggles parking lot and began building their floats for the parade the next day. All the floats fell under the theme "NU Salutes Boston History." The Band built a replica of the Hatch Shell. The Student Alumni Association constructed a mock 1918 World Series scoreboard depicting the game played where Cabot gym now stands. Phi Kappa Tau became ship builders and made a downscaled model of the USS Constitution docked in Charlestown.

The parade festivities began with a sunny Saturday of about 75 degrees and the Homecoming Parade on Huntington Avenue. This year saw the largest turnout at a parade since the Homecoming parade was re-instituted three years ago. All of the floats, marching groups, and the marching band strutted down Huntington Avenue, and everyone met later at Parson's Field.

The tailgate parties started hours before the game, and students joined alumni, family and staff for the game, that pitted the Huskies against the University of Rhode Island. Unfortunately, Northeastern lost 31-11, but no one seemed to mind. The football team "played hard, but didn't execute hard enough," said Coach Paul Pawlak.

At halftime student groups with creative and original float ideas won awards. Winners were: Theta Delta Chi for "Salem Witch Trials," Northeastern Cheerleaders for "Mr. Husky's Ride" and Tau Kappa Epsilon for "The Boston TKE Party." Best banner was a collaboration by Sigma Alpha Mu and Sigma Delta Tau. The Doo-Dah winner was new sorority Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Comic Dennis Miller of "Saturday Night Live" fame capped off the Homecoming events in Blackman Auditorium by cracking jokes and ending the busy weekend on a high and humorous note.

The avatar of our past five years

FALL 1986 — SUMMER 1987

Freshman Year

We stepped from the cars that brought us to Northeastern and looked at our new home. Northeastern, our alma mater, beckoned us. Our first university lesson was quickly learned: there are lines everywhere!

Weren't you scared as you went to meet your new roommate? Luckily, mine was more like Marcia Brady than Broom Hilda. After you passed through your new housing lines you were sent to Cabot Gym to get your new N.U. ID. I wonder why they don't tell anyone that this is permanent for five years?

The next day we all trooped to Matthews Arena. There President Ryder gave his welcoming speech, with the world famous "look to your left, look to your right" phrase.

The rest of Freshman Orientation Week was filled with events planned by the ResCons and NUFO's. How many people (well, besides me) actually went to these events?

Then university really started. Freshman classes were huge cattle calls with 300 of your closest personal friends attending. Sectioning lectures helped, but still there was little of the personal attention we were used to from high school. Remember you first college paper? exam? final? Remember how proud you were?

As freshmen we were indestructible and we could do anything. Be glad, for our futures depended on that!

Sophomore Year

Year two was when we experienced our first co-op. Pre-interview meetings with our co-op advisors and letters of introduction awaited us.

Can you remember your first co-op resume? I mean the one before your co-op advisor "bled" on it. We had to start explaining to friends and relatives that YES, we were still in college, yet not attending school. That's what the co-op program is all about. Did any of our families really understand our co-op schedules?

"How's school going?" "Ma, I'm on co-op now." "When does that end?" and so on, for a lot of co-op quarters.

As sophomores we were committed to staying with Northeastern. After passing the freshman cut, we knew that we could handle the rigors of college. Now we had to figure out what else there was to do here at NU, and in Boston.

FALL 1988 — SUMMER 1989

Middler Year

Middler year. What some people call the "lost year." This year brought out our survival instincts. I wonder how many ROTC students have been confused with Midshipmen rather than Middlers.

The infamous Middler Year Writing Requirement was upon us. What did you write about? I wrote about racism at Northeastern while my classmates covered manic depression, nuclear power submarines, and the economic outlook for a unified Germany.

Besides proving our scholastic capabilities, we now had a grip on where to find off-campus entertainment. With a variety of world-renowned hometown sports: the Bruins, Celtics, Huskies, Patriots, and Red Sox who had time to study? Who among us has not found their way down to Fenway Park on a bright summer day during a summer quarter?

We knew now that we were true Bostonians. What was the litmus test? Knowing that in the case of doubt the easiest way to find campus was to follow the Pru!

There was a huge sigh of relief when each class passed out of being middlers to being juniors.

Junior Year

As juniors we were concerned mostly with keeping up a good Grade Point Average. Well, we tried to get impressive co-op jobs for our resumes, too. This was the year that we started opening the door to our next step: the real world. Would you be going straight into the workforce or continuing on towards a graduate degree? It was time at least to consider those questions.

By this time, most of us had moved from the university residence halls to off-campus housing. Well, just those of us who weren't commuters!

Commuting was its own special torture, especially when dealing with that special class of human being called the "Boston Driver."

Off-campus housing was an adventure in pest control: from rats to cockroaches to noisy neighbors. Do you recall your first apartment? Just how many people really lived there? How many people did the landlord think lived there?

It was an amazing year. All of a sudden we weren't focused on NU but looking past it. No longer was there room for complacency. It was time for action.

Just one more year!

ARTS AND SCIENCES

Greetings, Class of 1991!

It has been a long hard assignment finishing your major, completing the Core, finishing your Coop experiences, but now that it is done, we hope you feel proud of your achievement and confident about your future.

You are graduating in Arts & Sciences because you realized at the start that college is not the end of your education but just a part of a commitment to life-long learning. We hope we have given you the education necessary to further your career, and to achieve a fulfilling life in whatever profession you choose. We hope, especially, that we have given you the enthusiasm and courage to go out and create a better world.

Northeastern University is a wonderful place, and you our graduates are our most wonderful accomplishment. We take great pride in this, and we hope that you will remember us with good feelings as your future unfolds.

Sincerely,

BOSTON-BOUVE

Dear Class of '91:

On behalf of the faculty and staff of Boston-Bouve College, I extend our warmest congratulations on the occasion of your graduation. This is a time for enjoying the deep personal satisfaction that comes from successfully completing a challenging and rewarding educational career.

Incorporating new knowledge and directions in the helping professions into the academic programs, cooperative education experiences and internships used to educate each graduating class is an ongoing challenge for a college. As our society evolves Boston-Bouve College and Northeastern University struggle to reflect those changes and continue to provide an education for life in an intellectual as well as a professional sense. Each student participates in tranforming the college, moving between the classroom and the workplace and back to the classroom.

Our graduates are the face Boston-Bouve College shows to the world. And our graduates become the world to which we look for instruction in the new technologies and changing social values. We hope you will continue to maintain a dynamic relationship with and participate in changing the faces of Boston-Bouve College and Northeastern University.

You enter your professional life with our pride and best wishes.

Sincerely,
Dean Paul M. Lepley

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Congratulations on your graduation from Northeastern University's College of Business Administration.

In the past five years, we have witnessed dramatic political and economic changes, both at home and abroad. Who could have predicted the Soviet Union's abrupt shift toward a market-driven economy, the unification of East and West Germany, or the rapid technological advances which have precipitated a truly global environment for business?

At the College of Business Administration, we've done our best to prepare you for the challenge of managing in a rapidly changing marketplace. As a student at the College, you have been exposed to a curriculum that combines a solid foundation in the liberal arts with a wide range of practical business courses and electives. Moreover, your cooperative education experience has allowed you to apply the lessons of the classroom to actual business situations.

This is indeed an exciting time to be embarking on a career in business. I wish you the best of luck in all your endeavors.

Sincerely,
Dean David Boyd

COMPUTER SCIENCE

Dear Students:

It's been a long five years. When you came as freshmen, some of you were already programming; others had never touched a computer. I doubt if many of you were really ready for the rigors of the program you entered, and the shock of adjusting to college life. Yet somehow you made it through the first year and out into your first co-op experience. You learned to cope with resumes and job interviews, with a boss and a paycheck and deadlines. And then it was back to school, and so on for four more years.

It's a wonderful experience for the faculty to work with students as they develop from shy, naive freshmen into self-confident seniors. As freshmen, we challenged you with a mountain of new concepts and ideas, as we tried to communicate what we love about our field. As you went through the program, you began to challenge us back, as you mastered the basics and moved on into frontiers of our science. At some point, if you were lucky, you found something exciting and interesting enough to be the basis for a lifetime of work and study.

The faculty work hard to make our program one that we can be proud of, one that is known for its excellence. The quality of our graduates is the best proof of our success. I and the rest of the faculty wish you all the best of everything in your future career. We hope you will remember us, by and large, as we remember you: with fondness and respect.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

A message from the Dean of the African-American Institute:
On behalf of the staff of the African-American Institute I would like to say Congratulations!

Time sure does fly! It seems like only yesterday when I first encountered many of you as seniors in high school and/or incoming freshmen. Being told to look to your left and then to your right and that one of you would not graduate? Who was on your left and right?

You have witnessed many changes during your tenure here at Northeastern from Reagan to Bush to Ryder to Curry. Michael Dukakis to William Weld. From having a choice of a job to being unemployed and watching the rate of homeless persons rise through the ceiling. Most importantly, you have been able to move from the tight confines of Dodge to the spacious comfort of the beautiful Snell Library complex. Prior to graduation you could get away with sitting on the sidelines watching the world change before your very eyes because you were in a "learning phase of your life." Now it is time to make a contribution and to take your rightful place in society. It is not easy out here in the struggle but, knowing that you are about to become a major player makes me very comfortable about the future.

Finally, do not forget. Do not forget; those who sacrificed so that you could get an education, those who taught you to love learning, your culture, or contributed to your well being in some manner. Although you have been a part of the "changing faces of Northeastern" do not forget those you have left behind here as well.

Again, Congratulations! Good Luck!

ENGINEERING

As you graduate from Northeastern and pursue either a career in your chosen engineering discipline or perhaps engage in further academic study, I remind you that you have not only been among "The Changing Faces of Northeastern University," you will soon be representative of the changing face of the engineering profession. Our society changes rapidly, and it is the engineer's task to meet the challenges posed by these changes. As an engineer, you will be trusted to solve immediate problems as well as to anticipate future ones. To prepare you for these tasks, we have sought to give you a broad, balanced education complemented by valuable coop experience. Our goals have included not only basic technical preparation in the fundamentals and in design of engineering systems, but also as wide an exposure as possible, in the constraint of our limited time together, to issues relating to diverse cultures, communications, ethical principles and management strategies.

As you leave the campus we recognize the evident limitation of what can be communicated in eleven short quarters. But we can trust that your Northeastern education will serve as a solid basis for continued life-long study and further personal development. We hope that your careers will be productive and personally rewarding.

The College faculty joins me in offering our warmest congratulations and best wishes. You have enriched our lives and you have been catalysts for change in our College. Continue to be creative! Enjoy your engineering careers! Look ahead! Don't be afraid of further change!

NURSING

Congratulations to the graduating class of the College of Nursing, 1990-1991. I do not see my message to you in the Yearbook as a good-bye, but as a new hello! Hello to you as alum and hello to you as the newest members of the profession of nursing; my new colleagues.

It is very appropriate that the theme of your yearbook is changing faces. You are entering the nursing profession when the face of many things is changing; the fabric and the context of health, the delivery of health care services, and the manner in which nursing is practiced. These alterations are not necessarily the result of a thoughtful, systematic process. Unfortunately, the impetus for community focused care, preventative services and health promotion has occurred in the response to a crisis in cost: benefit ratio and quality control in the national health care delivery system.

The prevailing critical state of the entire health care industry provides you, the neophytes, with exciting opportunities and challenges.

Your education at Northeastern has provided you with the knowledge and competence to meet these challenges effectively. Further, your personal characteristics of creativity, perseverance and commitment contribute to the leadership you can bring to the tasks ahead.

I wish you well and look forward to working with you to changing the face of health care and nursing practice.

Sincerely,
Dean Eileen Zungolo

PHARMACY/ALLIED HEALTH

It is indeed a pleasure to offer each and every member of the graduating class my most sincere congratulations.

The class of 1991 and I share something in common since we both were introduced to a series of new experiences about three years ago. As a student you began the professional component of your program and began to experience what it was like to work in the health field. I assumed a new administrative responsibility as dean of the college.

As you enter the health field, you leave Northeastern University with practical tools and a knowledge base. I urge you to do your utmost to deliver optimal health services and to work to implement and affect the needed changes so necessary to adequately serve all people. We look forward to whatever input you can provide us as we seek to continue to improve our offerings. Faces and programs will continue to change but we all strive to imprint a level of excellence on our programs that will prevail into the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Zordan
You've almost accomplished your dream. You will be a great nurse. The kids are waiting. Love Mom and Dad.

There are a few things in life worth waiting for: an ice-cold beer, a pay check, a job offer and graduation.

When told I would have a page all to myself, I considered writing my philosophy of Northeastern. But you're probably not interested in that — you lived through it. Instead, I'll just shoot the shit. Hey, it's more fun. Look at it as a freebase method of writing — one of the many useful skills not taught in college.

Don't strain yourself. Just sit back, relax, grab that cold brew and devour this psychotomimetic alphabet soup. And when I'm finished, I'll join you.

We hope you like our Life Magazine style college yearbook. We've noticed many people don't take time and read the stories in yearbooks. You'll find the stories here worth reading, and hopefully they'll send you to a state of total bliss or get you pissed off. If you care to complain, go to hell — you never helped us anyway.

A dominance of photos comes without choice. Four people conceived and gave birth to this baby (it was, I guess, an orgy of sorts). Some people helped by writing or shooting some photos. Everyone who helped out in the slightest way, thanks. Everyone else, screw you.

While all you seniors might have completed your requirements at this fine "institution," I'm committed here for another year to finish my sentence. Honestly folks, I'm innocent.

Graduation has made you happy, huh? Multiply your euphoria by 100 and that's how I feel about terminating this thankless job.

Before I finish poking these keys, there are a few chum(p)s I must thank. Joe "Photo Ace" Mathis and Kelly "Honorable Editor Lordship something or other" Durkee for their undying support as we slaved through this one-pound book of blood, sweat and . . . well . . . more blood. No matter how hard they worked, they just wouldn't die. Gary "The Invisible Photog" Makredes, thank God for your introduction to a camera. Amanda, thanks for stepping in to save us. If you ever return from Australia, I owe you lunch.

May everyone in the class of 1991 have a successful future. You might see me again — most likely on a beach in Florida — hopefully conscious. If not there, try Europe.

I've got another year to wait for graduation and hopefully a job offer. But I don't have to wait for this beer. This edition of the Cauldron is now out of our hands. We're done. I'm bringing in the dogs, putting out the fire and calling it a hunt.

Have a nice weekend.

Peace.

Rob S.

Managing editor Rob Schailler killed many brain cells working on this book — you probably noticed. We thank him for his sacrifice. Last seen sitting backward on a motorcycle while reporting a bicycle race, he's armed with a notebook, pen and camera but not considered dangerous.

Top photo Gary Makredes. Bottom photos Robert Schailler . . . don't ask — we don't know either.

Gone Cyclin'

"I have nothing to do" NOT THE END

What did y'all expect?

Robert Schailler

That headline is an inside joke. It's what someone close to me says to make us both laugh. Our goal is to one day be able to say the phrase "I'm bored. I have nothing to do." and mean it. I have used this kind of humor to get me through the stress and the hard times. Understand that "He who laughs, lasts."

Next, I have to thank everyone in the universe who has in any way helped this staff to accomplish this literary feat. There were so many days/nights that our small staff struggled to keep both sane and on even keel. (Our official thank you sits on page 95).

Oh, why am I sitting there on top of an endless stack of boxes, in a NU Bands rugby, blowing a 'trumpet'? It was the night of the Beanpot Consolation game, and also the night of a Cauldron deadline. I was obligated by 'officership' to be at both events so, I came to the Cauldron office dressed as Joe NU Student Spirit as soon as I got back from the Garden. My staff was highly amused, hence the photo.

This yearbook would not have come out if not for our three other executive officers of 1990-1991 Amanda Krohn (Business Manager), Joseph Mathis (Photo Editor), Robert Schailler (Managing Editor). These three kept me from throwing myself, the computers, many photos, and especially the phone out the window.

Speaking of our view from the fourth floor of the Ell Center: You people who hung out on the third floor of the library: we saw all that weird stuff you did all year long. Keep it in the privacy of your own home.

The changing faces of Northeastern University. The theme to end all themes. How true it is that our lives revolved around change. But we made it, and Northeastern is now our "beloved" alma mater. Yippee! By the way, Janet, the top right picture on page 166 is for you.

There is a pain in my heart that deepens as each raindrop falls from the sky. As the storm deepens the pain dulls and the wind whips the memories through my mind. I scream as the pain awakens and I am scarred for life. I am sure what is in my eyes explains what my voice can not. Please understand.........

— KAD'91

"There is no greater sign of man's humanity to man than a fire engine." — Kurt Vonnegut

And finally, to my friends and family: if you thought this was hard work, wait 'til I get to law school. That makes this look like a vacation. Vacation.... hmmm . . . access denied. Word not in database. Thank you for playing.
CONGRATULATIONS CLASS OF 1991! (AND '92: GOOD LUCK!!!!)

Kelly A. Dukee

A high point of this job: meeting stars!
